UCI Urban Cycling World Championships Presented by FISE confirmed as final event for Olympic Qualification

Hosted at the Sud de France Arena from June 4th to 8th, the 2021 UCI Urban Cycling World Championships will count as part of the qualification process for the Tokyo 2020 Olympic Games, taking place this summer.

With the qualification period ending officially on June 7th for BMX Freestyle Park, riders are going to get their very last opportunity to grab points toward the most prestigious competition in the World. This year, the event is even more anticipated because it will be the first time that BMX Freestyle Park is part of the sports program. By confirming this news, the IOC is increasing the anticipation for the contest which is expected to gather the world's best BMX athletes.
