Following the Junior and Amateur categories, the Women of BMX Freestyle Park announced an unprecedented line up for a FISE Xperience Series stage. First step since its launch to welcome such an international contest, its challenge of collecting points in the UCI world ranking by a C1 label has offered the Rémois runs from Argentina, Venezuela, Spain and RCF . If this enthusiasm has reinforced the level of the contest, it needed more to destabilize the French champion Laury Perez who get the victory today.

These performances warmed up the spectators who were at the height of their involvement during the launch of the BMX Freestyle Park Pro final. First in qualifying the day before, the young Brazilian Gustavo Oliveira had announced high-flying finals with his style full of amplitude. Over-motivated by the warm welcome by the Rémois, Anthony Jeanjean risked his most technical tricks to win a gold medal ahead of the English Dylan Hessey and Shaun Gornall.

After this exceptional Champagne edition, the stages of Canet-en-Roussillon will follow, on June 18 and 19, then Thonon-les-Bains, on August 14 and 15 and Le Havre, on August 28 and 29.
